The PhD Project seeks to establish a mechanism through which African Americans are fully recognized as contributing members of the University of Texas at Arlington and the community at large. The organization will accomplish this objective by advocacy and support for issues deemed important by the AAFSA.

- To provide advice and support to African-American faculty, staff and constituents.
- To sponsor mentoring opportunities for membership, etc.
- To assist and advise on issues related to the advancement of African-American faculty, staff and students.
- To provide a forum for research and professional development.
- To develop partnerships with other University organizations.

The PhD Project was established by The KPMG Foundation in 1994, following the termination of the Minority Summer Institute (MSI) run by GMAC and AACSB. MSI encouraged minorities at the undergraduate level to look at a career in academia, but did not meet intended expectations. With an investment of just $5,000 each, Bernie Milano, then head of recruiting at KPMG, and Peter Thorp of Citigroup, led a process to shift the model and focus on minorities at the graduate level instead. The PhD Project was launched with additional support from GMAC and AACSB...it worked, and continues to achieve great success!

The PhD Project’s mission is to increase the diversity of corporate America by...
Greetings AAFSA,

The fall semester has gone by really fast. I want to thank you all for attending the President’s reception for our membership. It was a great event. I would like to include a special thanks to Dr. Schnavia Hatcher for her presentation on the Center for African American Studies. I would also like to congratulate Dr. Elton Briggs for his promotion to Associate Professor in the College of Business. As well as the other faculty members who have received recognition for their recent publications.

We have a number of things planned for the spring semester which includes our signature event the banquet for graduating African-American students.

Some other events of note for the spring semester include Black History Month presentations and a men and women’s summit.

I wish everyone a happy and safe Holiday season!

Best Wishes,

Eddie

Shakeela Hunter joined the University of Texas Arlington on June 18th 2012, and is the Director of the University’s new Student Money Management Center. The center is aimed at ensuring students have the opportunity to learn how to manage budgets and debt, save, prevent identity theft and plan for retirement – all before they earn their college degree. Hunter helped launch the University Of Illinois’s Student Money Management Center in the Student Financial Services office in 2010 to assist the university’s 70,000 students with their personal financial needs. She recalls how, as the national economy dipped into recession, students whose parents had lost jobs struggled to keep current on tuition payments. “I’m passionate about students and helping them stay in school,” Hunter said. “My hope is that they will get a quality education and graduate with as little debt as possible. I want them to be educated about finances before they ever have to worry about their credit score.” Hunter earned her undergraduate degree in finance from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and her Master of Business Administration from the University of Phoenix. During her spare time, Hunter enjoys spending time with her loving husband of 10 years, her 7yr old son, and 20mo old daughter.

Gingerbread Men Cookies

Directions:

1. In a small bowl, whisk together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, ginger, cinnamon, and cloves until well blended.

2. In a large mixer bowl beat butter, brown sugar, and egg on medium speed until well blended.

3. Add the molasses and vanilla. Continue to mix until well blended.

4. Gradually stir in dry ingredients until dough is smooth.

5. Divide dough in half and wrap each half in plastic. Let stand at room temperature for at least 2 hours.

6. Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Line cookie sheets with parchment paper.

7. Place 1 half of the divided dough on a floured surface.

8. Roll dough to a little over 1/4” thickness. Flour your work surface and rolling pin as needed to keep the dough from sticking.

9. Cut out cookies with cookie cutters.

10. Place cookies 1 1/2” apart on prepared cookie sheet.

11. Bake one sheet of cookies at a time for 7-9 minutes, do not over-bake. Cookies firm up after cooling.

12. Remove cookie sheet from oven and allow the cookies to cool until firm enough to move to a wire rack. Decorate your gingerbread men with icing, candies, or colored sugar when fully cooled.

Increasing the diversity of business school faculty. They attract African-Americans, Hispanic-Americans and Native Americans to business Ph.D. programs, and provide a network of peer support on their journey to becoming professors. As faculty, they serve as role models attracting and mentoring minority students while improving the preparation of all students for our diverse workplace and society. It’s vision is: “A significantly larger pool of highly qualified African-Americans, Hispanic-Americans, and Native Americans for positions in management.”

Dr. Elten D. Briggs and Dr. Myrtle Bell recently represented UTA at the annual PhD Project Conference in Chicago in November.

Thank you Dr. Briggs and Dr. Bell for representing UTA! More information about the PhD Project can be found at http://www.phdproject.org/aboutus.html
