

INSTALLMENTS

Information from UT Arlington Libraries

Vol. 3, Issue 3, Mar. 2015

Spring Break Hours

Date	Central	AFA	SEL
Mar. 6	Closes at 8 p.m.	8 a.m. to 6 p.m.	8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Mar. 7	9 a.m. to 8 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Mar. 8	9-2 a.m.	1-6 p.m.	1-6 p.m.
Mar. 9-12	7-2 a.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Mar. 13	7-8 a.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Mar. 14	9 a.m. to 8 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.	10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Mar. 15	9 a.m. to 24 hrs	1-9 p.m.	1-9 p.m.
Mar. 16	Regular Hours	Regular Hours	Regular Hours

Juneteenth in Texas: 150 Years of Freedom

Basil Clemons Photograph Collection
UT Arlington Libraries Special Collections

On Saturday, March 28, the UT Arlington History Department and Center for Greater Southwestern Studies will host a half-day program for the general public and secondary school teachers designed to explore the origins and impact of the Juneteenth celebrations. This event will focus on issues that deal with African-American—and Texas African-Americans in particular—from Emancipation to the Civil Rights era. It will feature two speakers, Shennette Garrett-Scott, University of Mississippi, and Elizabeth Hays-Turner, University of North Texas, both of whom are authorities on the African-American experience. To register, visit <http://bit.ly/18KIdWG>

Women's History Month features best-selling author

Charlaine Harris
Women's History Month Keynote Speaker
7 p.m., March 24, sixth floor of Central Library
The Women's and Gender Studies Program present Charlaine Harris, New York Times best-selling author whose Sookie Stackhouse series inspired the HBO drama True Blood. Harris will speak on Futuristic Females: Women in Science and Science Fiction.

Focus on Faculty examines efforts to preserve Native American Languages

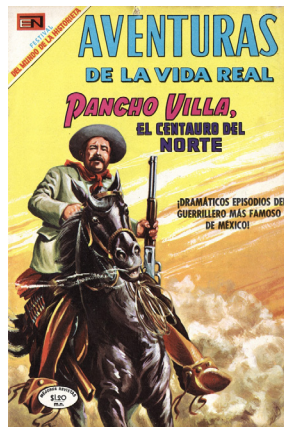

March 18, noon, sixth floor of Central Library

Dr. Fitzgerald and UT Arlington's Native American Languages Lab collaborate with Native American communities and other partners to document and revitalize languages, to train community members and students, and to do everything possible to support the survival of American indigenous languages, these 'First' languages of our United States.

Fitzgerald's talk, Breathing New Life into Native American Languages, will be followed by a reception sponsored by The Honor Society Phi Kappa Phi. The event is free and open to all.

¡Viva Mexico!

Monday, March 16
Central Library
Sixth Floor Parlor

This exhibit celebrates the artistry, invention and diversity of the Golden Age of Mexican comic books. Here, through these humble comics, are the heroes and villains, the triumphs and the tragedies, and the cultural icons that have defined modern Mexico.

The exhibit runs until August and is free and open to all.

Wednesday
Room 314
Central Library